

Raising the roof

A rare but beautiful find, London's rooftop gardens command spectacular views of the city skyline and offer a crowning triumph for the summer months

Greybrook House penthouse,
Brook Street, W1K, £25m

"There are very few real roof gardens in London. Most are generally a small terrace area with a few potted plants, but the penthouse at Greybrook House provides a true oasis above the busy Mayfair streets. The garden has a relaxed dining space, fire pit and a stunning spherical wrought iron archway for climbing plants." – Peter Wetherell, CEO, Wetherell, wetherell.co.uk
